

Justin Altstadt is the Technical Director for the Castle Show Choirs. It all began with one curious trip back in 2019—just “checking out” what show choir was all about. Spoiler alert: Justin got hooked faster than you can say “five-six-seven-eight!” Now he’s the wizard behind the scenes as Technical Director for Castle’s show choirs, making sure the lights dazzle, the sound is crystal clear, and the stage magic happens without a hitch.

By day, Justin keeps things running smoothly at Deaconess Health System in his full-time gig. But when the spotlights call, he’s all in—because nothing beats seeing our Knightingales and Knight Sensations light up the stage!

When he’s not cueing the next big number, Justin hangs out in Boonville with his favorite crew: his wonderful wife Kirby and their two sons, Rowan and Silas. (Rumor has it the boys are already practicing their choreography in the living room—future show choir stars?)

Proud to help bring the sparkle and sound to Castle Show Choirs—let’s keep the energy high and the mics hot!
